LIVE BUTTERFLIES TO BE RELEASED ON EASTER MORNING AT FELLOWSHIP CHRISTIAN REFORMED CHURCH

ALBUQUERQUE, NM, APRIL 20, 2014: Butterflies have a beautiful significance for Easter. To celebrate this significance, Fellowship Christian Reformed Church will hold a live butterfly release following their morning Easter service this year.

“Butterflies symbolize new life and what better time to be thinking about new life than Easter?” said Tatia Veltkamp, a local butterfly breeder and proprietor of Wings of Enchantment, a butterfly farm based in Albuquerque. Releasing butterflies can be a simple way to encourage that symbolism as well as give hope, according to Veltkamp.

Join Wings of Enchantment Butterfly Farm and Fellowship Christian Reformed Church at 4800 Indian School Road NE on Easter morning at 9:45am for fun children’s activities and a morning service followed by a beautiful live butterfly release.

Wings of Enchantment Butterfly Farm (<http://wingsofenchantment.com/index.html>) is the local leader in supplying Albuquerque with education on butterflies. The farm is located in NE Albuquerque and has educational programs available for all ages. The owner, Tatia Veltkamp, has been raising butterflies for more than 12 years.

Fellowship Christian Reformed Church (<http://fellowshipcsrc.org/>) is located at 4800 Indian School Road NE, Albuquerque. Phone 505-268-3700 for any questions.
